

Everything you'd still send back, the day to try it by, and the last day it can go back. Take it out of the box a week early and run it once. Check off each step you clear for a ticket.

WHOSE LIST THIS IS

WHERE THE RECEIPTS AND ORDER EMAILS LIVE

"The kitchen drawer", "the Orders folder". Somewhere you'd look first.

LAST UPDATED

#	THE STEP	WHAT YOU'RE DOING	DONE ON	CLEAR
1	THE CLOSET Or the garage, or the trunk	Anything still in its box, or bought and not tried yet The sale grab, the backup, the thing you'll get to later. Give each one a row	DATE	☐
2	THE RECEIPTS AND EMAILS Search "order" or "delivered"	The date each one was bought, or the day it showed up Amazon, Target and Best Buy count from when you get it. No date? Leave it blank	DATE	☐
3	THE REAL WINDOW Before you decide it's too late	How many days the store gives, from its own policy page The store box at the bottom has six. Otherwise it's on the receipt	DATE	☐
4	THE TRY-IT-BY DATE A week before the last day	Plug it in and run it once, while it can still go back A quick test, not a month of use. Some stores take back opened things for less time	DATE	☐
5	THE POKE Phone calendar, alarm, sticky note	Put both dates somewhere that reminds you on its own A receipt in a drawer won't. The Try It By tool makes a calendar file for you	DATE	☐

6 IKEA: 365 days unopened
180 days once it's opened, with proof of purchase.

STEPS CLEARED — / 5

One ticket per step you clear, so five tickets for finishing the sheet. A step where the honest answer was nothing here still counts, because now you know.

NEW BOX IN THE DOOR, ONE ROW, SAME DAY

Write it down before it goes in the closet. The date's on the order email or the receipt right now, and it won't be this easy to find in two months.

THINK IT'S TOO LATE? CHECK ANYWAY

I gave up on a blender I'm pretty sure Costco would have taken back. Look at the store's own policy page or your order page before you decide.
